

REFLEXION: third week of class (April 4th)

This week I felt really frustrated because even when I try hard to give to my student activities in which they can have some fun, they don't take it too seriously, and misbehave all the time, I think that the materials and the techniques I use are good but the problem is the discipline and as the class has more than 40 students, its difficult to make them work and if I ask them to make groups they work less, because the star talking and taking.

This week I assigned some easy presentation in group, and they did not prepare anything, giving me unbelievable excuses, I always try to be with them a little flexible but with this situation, I just had to make them a quiz, related to the presentation they had to do, the result was that most of the students failed in the exam, but I think that is the only way they can take me seriously and try to work more in the classroom and their homework.

Another thing I could notice, that they don't like to do homework because most of the time I assign them and they do not do it, so the problem is that sometimes it's hard to work in the classroom and if they never want to work at home either, so I have to try to find a strategy they can work during the class without misbehaving.

KAREN LORENA ALVAREZ MARTINEZ
PROFESSIONAL PRACTICE II