

REFLEXION: fifth week of classes (April 21th)

During this week I could notice a progress in my teaching practicum because I could fill out all the students' necessity, I implemented some dynamic activities in which students were engaged, now I am trying to implement more activities in which I don't have to use many photocopies and the students have to use their motivation, also all they were up to participate, and if I motivate them with candies there is a better participation, the only bad thing was that there was a little of misbehaving that is an issue I have to work on, but the rest was successful.

Additionally, I consider that this week was really enriching because it offered me another tools which I can implement with the others groups as well, I could notice students have positive responses when I give them activities in which they have to associate images with meanings. Another thing I feel really frustrated about is that some students are afraid to participate, to use English in the classroom, they are always translating what I say into Spanish and even if I give them opportunities to talk they do not want to participate because they do not want to make mistakes.

To sum up, I can say that this week was a little much better, I had a progress with my students, and I am feeling much happier with the results and the attitude they are having during the lesson, but I'm still looking for improvement.
