

Reflection:

During this class i felt very good because I was less the work I had to make, most of my students were working on the worksheet that I had time to rest and think about what to do my class. During the development of the activity I observed that my students do things wrongs because when I told them to work in groups they start to fight or they do not like that idea but when the work it is individual they are very close, if one student do not know the answer the other help them to get the answer, but they still having problem about being selfish with things, they do not like to share for example a pencil, or a color so I really do not understand my students, after the class finished I talked to some of them about how to be better partners inside the classroom, to what they answered giving to me reasons why they behave in that way and I responded to them with my own reasons why they were acting bad. At the end they understand and promised to me to change that behavior with their partners.
